Comments on S7-10-22 Climate-Related Disclosures for Investors

To whom it may concern,

Attached are the signatures and comments of 14,954 individuals who signed onto the following statement through the Sierra Club.

The Securities and Exchange Commission's new draft rule for climate risk disclosure is a critical step in fulfilling its mandate to protect investors and capital markets. Far too many corporations do not disclose the climate risks they face, and they make climate-related commitments without disclosing information investors need to verify that they are living up to those commitments. Without this disclosure, investors cannot tell if companies will continue to be profitable and resilient as the economy transitions to clean energy. This is unfair to countless individuals like me who need to protect our savings for the long term.

By setting a clear standard for businesses to disclose data about their preparations for the shift to a clean energy economy, as well as actions to address extreme weather and other climate change impacts, this rule will provide investors with the vital information they need to protect our financial futures. I applaud the Commission for addressing major gaps in corporate transparency and fulfilling its mission to protect investors.

Although the rule addresses many climate risk transparency problems, it is not strong enough on one in particular: requirements for disclosure of emissions from clients, customers, and suppliers (Scope 3 emissions). While the draft rule likely would require some companies to disclose these emissions, many others would be able to evade key disclosures that investors want and need. The final rule MUST establish a clear Scope 3 disclosure requirement for all large public companies, and require that the accuracy of these disclosures be independently verified. Investors should not be left in the dark about this important source of climate risk.

I look forward to the SEC's continued efforts to provide transparency regarding the threats that climate change poses to the savings of investors across our economy.

3,028 of these signers, you might also notice, added their own additional personal comments. If there are any questions about this statement or our positions on this matter do not hesitate to contact us.

Sincerely,

Ben Cushing

A lot of people don't believe in climate change but it is real all you have to do is look it up on YouTube or Google the facts about climate change and you will see specifically exactly what's going on with our climate and with this planet. We don't have anywhere else to live you children grandchildren and great-grandchildren I don't know how they're going to live they're going to end up having to wear a hazmat suit every day just to go outside. That's how bad I think it's going to be one of these days. People don't take things seriously until it's too late. And when it's too late there's nothing that can be done to change it. We still have time to make a big difference. People are already having to leave their homes wherever they are because it's so dry no rain no food again no rain no food. The air quality get so bad and the water is so bad it's killing our sea creatures. So many animals are going extinct. All we want people to do is to care and do something about it. Please care.

A major financial regulator, the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), has proposed a new rule requiring companies to disclose their climate risks that, once finalized, will be a critical step forward for the millions of Americans with retirement funds and savings plans who want to know how the companies they invest in will impact climate change. Investors have been understandably concerned that the climate commitments made by many corporations are not reliable, and they lack the information they need to compare companies and make informed investment decisions. The public deserves to know whether those companies will remain profitable and resilient in an economy that is transitioning to clean energy. Let's make sure the SEC follows through with this disclosure rule.

A rule that requires historical data showing the evolution of a corporation's investments and returns shifting away from environmentally harmful activities and practices to less harmful ones. All 7+ billion of us humans need to be accountable. The Paris agreement gave us all a goal to reach by such and such date. The companies who supply us with all the goods and services we need daily are also an important part of those numbers.

If a company is not doing its part to reach the lowered goal, they must change their way of doing business. The old way of getting in there and taking what you want to sell are gone if that getting it will require more hidden costs and negative impacts. We only have one Earth. If we reach what scientists call the tipping point or point of no return, we may be in for a downhill ride we do not want to take, as an individual, as a society, and as our economy.

Americans must be provided the information necessary to exercise their investment choices in a manner that will steer our future toward a healthy and habitable planet, not just the immediate financial returns that the capital market recognizes and rewards. The continued profitability of fossil fuel companies is incompatible with a habitable Planet Earth, and any entity or person or entity that invests in coal, oil, or gas companies is therefore placing a financial wager upon the destruction of Planet Earth. Such grossly immoral behavior by a company is incompatible with the values of many of their would-be shareholders, were this information generally available. The first and foremost interest of all human beings is in a habitable planet, without which no amount of money is relevant.

The proposed a new rule to require companies to disclose their climate risks is an important step forward for the millions of us Americans who want to know how corporations could impact the climate crisis and what they are doing to mitigate the problem. Make the rule as strong as possible so lip-service won't be enough. As a mother of young children and taxpaying, working citizen, it is frustrating to know that corporations are insulated and allowed to lie to consumers regarding sustainable practices. Offsets are little more than smoke in mirrors. Corporations along with individuals must aggressively work to reduce their carbon footprint (stop burning fossil fuels). If corporations chose to be ignorant of the current climate collapse and global energy, favoring their short term profits and green, well then they better be honest and transparent about it and let consumers make their educated choices.

Our children deserve a safe and stable future, yet the world they are inheriting cannot help but continue to destabilize due to the continued human destruction.

Please require close monitoring, transparency, and reporting to consumers regarding this critical issue. It is life-or-death for many. Please stop insulating corporations. They are not people.

As a native of South West Missouri, I and many others in my area have experienced the fallout of corporate green washing, lack of responsibilities, and lack of disclosures. Many communities in Missouri have been permanently damaged and their environment altered by poorly regulated mining operations and clean-up that was barely adequate.

Requiring companies to disclose ahead of time their impacts, risks, and procedures would help prevent other communities from ending up in the same boat. Likewise, it should not be permissible business practice that companies can evade commitments due to lack of requirement to disclose proofs, results, etc.

As a person who understands humans' critical interdependence with the natural world and believes our cumulative actions affect environmental quality, I believe a sustainable environment for future generations depends on protecting our climate. Lowering the carbon we emit into the atmosphere is one important piece of this protection. Please enforce disclosure rules which accurately inform the public how companies' actions are damaging or protecting our climate. Please make these rules strong enough to achieve full transparency from companies, so it is clear which of them are following responsible, sustainable practices.

As an investor, and a citizen of the world, I want to know what corporations are doing about climate change and how they are working or not working too slow it. This is such a huge problem and will be the deciding factor in all of our futures. If we don't move quickly in the direction to reduce climate effects of large corporations especially, the future of society as we know it is doomed. It's easy for a company to say they're using solar power for their electricity, but if a bank is still lending money for drilling oil and supporting fossil fuels around the world, what good does that do So it is essential that we require them to disclose what their customers are doing as well as what the companies themselves are doing.

As we in Connecticut face two days of 90+ degree temperatures (May 21 and 22), the terrible impact of climate change, which has been evident for years, gets worse and more visible. It is absolutely imperative that companies disclose their climate risks. For financial and ethical reasons, investors need to know if companies' actions match their promises. If companies planned to be transparent in the absence of a strong requirement to disclose these risks, including emissions risks, they would be doing that now, but they aren't. A strong rule is essential to protecting investors.

As a consumer I plan on spending my money on companies that are making a positive impact. My grandchildren deserve a healthy diversified world. I do not want to live in a world within animals, birds, and natural beauty. I do not want to pay the price or see the consequences of what will only get worse as the world turns warmer. The weather becomes dangerous and destructive. The scientists have warned everyone for years, the tipping point is not 2050 or even 2030. It is now. Look at the fires the last few years. Cigarette companies knew for decades that their products were harming people. They did everything they could legal and illegal to hide that fact and cast doubt on the science confirming it. From long before child labor was outlawed to Amazons almost slave labor warehouse conditions and union busting today, companies and their owners have put profit over people. The steady reduction of regulations has allowed multibillionaires to grow at the expense of the earth and humanity. You CAN have profits and growth without doing harm. Ben and Jerrys did alright. You just cannot have the enormous profits the greedy are going for today. Capitalism flourished even with regulation for decades after the Great Depression. Unbridled greed is killing us all now. Faster than we ever thought. Greed needs to be regulated. This little provision for climate disclosure will help us in one small way to keep companies accountable but still allows profits. ominous development may well end our experiment in representative democracy unless we alter this decades-long trend. For the sake of the republic, we must amend the US Constitution to state that corporations are not people (and do not have constitutional rights) and money is not speech (and thus can be regulated by state and/or federal campaign finance laws). Corporations must be accountable to the citizens of this planet. We all have the right to know how Amazon, Tesla, Twitter, Google, etc are impacting our planet. As someone living uncomfortably close to two wildfires, I am sick of all the lies and greynwashing huge companies do to protect their image. Please make companies disclose their climate impacts!

Corporations must be forced to be truthful about disclosing information regarding climate risks and their commitments to keep the world and everyone safe from toxins and damage. Emissions must be disclosed! Our world and its people must be kept safe. It is important for these companies to realize that when people are killed off by emissions and toxins and the earth is damaged along with the environment that these companies can no longer do any business for anybody because well all be all gone, never to return to this poisoned earth!

Corporations must be held accountable to their climate commitments. For too long, corporations have ignored their impact on the climate as they pursued profits. They must be transparent, and they must be required to live up to their clean energy pledges. The SEC must enact a strong final rule requiring companies to truthfully disclose their climate risks.

Corporations must be held accountable. I have asthma and am tired of nothing being done to eliminate pollution. We need corporations to stop all the greenwashing and actually make a difference for climate change.

482. Sharon Chevalier
[REDACTED]
Clute, TX 77531
Corporations must be made to be accountable for emissions and other climate related disclosures to the public as the world seeks Green Energy alternatives. No more secretiveness and/or hiding from the EPA, such as flares burning high at night releasing chemicals into the air we breathe. I live around chemical plants and have for 49 years this year, and I know the latter was done locally for decades. I've worked in the oil and gas industry and have personal knowledge of damages done through the exploration and retrieval of minerals found in the ground. These major corporations must held to higher standards in this day and age. The health and sustainability of the planet far outweighs their greed for profits that form the very crux of these issues. Whatever it takes must be done to remedy their practices. The future of the planet and humanity demands change!

climate change is a perfect example, really the ultimate example, of this kind of harm. As a citizen and an investor I hope you will quickly enact your proposed rule requiring companies to disclose climate risks

Corporations need to make accurate disclosures for their climate risks. The only way for the public, lenders, investors, and government regulators to know the extent of their risks is for disclosures to be timely, complete, and truthful. We need a strong

Did you know: that bottled water in your hand most likely came from Lake Michigan Michigan is surrounded by Americas greatest fresh water natural resource, the Great Lakes. We have more coastline here than in California or Florida. It is easier in coastal communities to see the direct effects of mis-handled waste, commercial run-off & other environmental hazards when you can no longer fish, drink or play in unsafe lakes, rivers & estuaries; as is already the case here in most places.

Protect our once pristine waterways & forests not only for ourselves, but that future generations might enjoy a bit of awe & wonder, along with a fresh drink.

Disclosures by companies and their suppliers & major clients regarding their climate risks and potentially damages to the environment is an important first step toward managing the impacts on the environment and people as well as elucidating some of the potential risks & benefits that investors and insurers require to properly manage their own future. As the uncertainty of the risks grows due to more rapidly evolving climate conditions, we need stronger rules and regulations for timely, complete, and accurate information & disclosures concerning climate impacts. Without this information, we may well be investing in the wrong companies, or creating outcomes that we do not desire.

Greenwashed ads and other forms of lying is how. Its cheaper than telling the truth.

Designated as good citizens by the 2010 passage of the Citizens United act enables them to use bloated campaign contributions and fleets of lobbyists to avoid backing up their claims in truth. Earth's rapidly changing climate posses a threat to our financial stability. If we do nothing, as large corporations desire, then the collapse of ecosystems around the world will upend political, economic, and social modest adjustments politicians are that corporations list their climate disclosure risk, they may pay a small

As a consumer, I'm not part of the corporate machine. I have no idea, really, what's happening in boardrooms and factories everywhere. BUT, labeling products to show their impact - both BEFORE public consumption and AFTER - would, I believe, have a huge effect on consumer spending and our planet.

For too long, corporations have hidden their environmental impacts and misled the public about their ability to play a role in stopping the climate crisis, a process better known as greenwashing. The SEC should require corporations to publicly disclose their climate impacts -- most notably their greenhouse gas emissions -- and how climate change will affect their business. This is a common sense disclosure rule which should be required. Once investors obtain accurate information about which companies are aiming to adjust to a clean energy future and which are not, most investors will choose the sustainable ones.

Greenwashing is nothing more than propaganda used to keep people complacent while companies continue to destroy our planet with toxic, dangerous, and wasteful practices. We cannot live without CLEAN water, nutrient-rich soil, and a stable climate. These companies and the government keep putting all of us at risk by ignoring the climate crisis just to make profits. They are the biggest contributors to CO2 and plastic in the world and need to be held accountable for the death and destruction they are causing.

Greenwashing is so detrimental to the progress we make towards a more sustainable society. We must hold businesses accountable for their actions and enforce sustainable practices in a way that allows for transparency at all levels possible. Businesses that present false claims of sustainable practices are poisonous to actual businesses who actively work to improve their business practices to reduce wastes. Companies that lie for profit fill me with anger and frustration, and damage the relationship between consumers and producers.

Greetings, Securities & Exchange Commission. I am so GRATEFUL to hear of the new rule to REQUIRE CLIMATE RISKS be stated up front BYcorporations. They have often NOT disclosed this in the past & the consequences have been devastating for People, Animals, Plants, the limited FRESH Waters and Lands. Please DO HOLD COMPANIES/CORPORATIONS ACCOUNTABLE. It matters to those, especially Native Nations and the Rural/Urban Poor, who often have these corporations polluting their air, water, land and food, & often have the least amount of cultural capital, as well as actual capital to fight these seemingly impervious giants. I urge you to STRENGTHEN this draft rule, not just for the current generation, but for the Seven Generations that follow. It is THEY who will suffer the consequences of any climate inactions of this critical climate era.

Guess what, climate change is happening. It doesn't really matter the cause. Republicans want to do nothing because it might reduce profits. Sensible people want to take all reasonable measures to minimize the undeniably bad impacts of our changing climate. Doing nothing will cost a little now, but it's a big delusion to think just letting go won't have really bad effects on profits in the future. Let's not be that dumb.

History tells that corporations will not act in the interest of public responsibility unless forced to do so, and that they will often claim to be responsible with no real action behind those claims. The climate crisis is the most compelling reason to force worldwide corporate entities to disclose their real impacts on the planet and, as a result, to be induced to change their environmental footprints.

I am most excited to see that we are getting companies to be clear and consistent about their Scope 1 and 2 emissions and requiring this disclosure. I understand it will take some effort for companies to adopt this reporting and there may be some controversy around the requirement. It will be key for SEC to stand its ground on that rule so consumers and investors can have clarity and certainty about the role each company has in producing or reducing greenhouse gas emissions. I am also encouraged by the idea of Scope 3 reporting and reference that in this letter.

I have been wanting this information ever since I realized that a relatively few companies (in the big picture) were happily destroying this planet as a habitable place for people to live, for the sake of their profits. Maybe it is that the individuals can hide behind the company/corporate name that they can do something so heinous. It is essentially committing murder from afar, like the destruction of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, but on a much larger scale. Guess these companies cannot be charged with war crimes, but at least held up for public scrutiny and shaming, and consequent financial losses. At least they have an out - change their ways!

I have long wanted to invest my money, not only to create a financial cushion for my future, but also to

If this transparency was required from all corporations, then I would happily give my money to those who show themselves to be worthy of support. I hope the SEC passes new disclosure rules. The need is obvious and overwhelming for companies to be transparent with the public, and with their stockholders about their plans to help or to worsen our proven global climate dangers. These energy companies must be required to be responsible, and sadly, they won't do so on their own. Please make strict laws and rules to promote the public interest and the health of the worldwide community through rule of LAW. Protect our ability to KNOW what these companies are actually doing, which affects us in so many ways. As citizens, lovers of the outdoors, and as financial investors and customers of these companies, we deserve the truth. They must be strongly regulated in our dangerous times . We need our government agencies, like the SEC, to be strong for the good of all. I support the SEC's steps towards addressing major gaps in corporate transparency related to disclosure of data related to climate change impacts. The new draft rule for climate risk disclosure is a critical step in fulfilling its mandate to protect investors and capital markets, however it is not comprehensive enough considering the extremely negative corporate impacts on our shared environment. Far too many corporations engage in environmental destruction while greenwashing their impact with opaque disclosures.

applies here: If corporations are required to be more transparent with climate risk disclosure, then we investors can make more informed choices with investing in our financial clean economy. We investors need and deserve to be assured that companies are honoring their

I, and I think most Americans, want to know the true effect of a company's actions on climate change and the environment. We need to stop loopholes that allow companies to hide their effects through Greenwashing. We need to encourage companies to truly switch to clean energy practices, and not just hide that they haven't made good changes. We are reaching the climate change tipping point faster than we realized in the past, and we need to take drastic measures now.

If ever the old advice to "follow the money" made sense, it's in relation to corporate actions to confront the climate disruption that is already taking lives and homes from people right here in the US, and around the world. We need to know whether the money that we, and institutional investors, and investment firms, and others are investing in corporations - and the money we spend on the products and services we buy from those corporations - is being used to actually reduce carbon and methane pollution, or contributing to the continued acceleration of climate-damaging pollutants. And even if a court should find the company guilty, not one person is held responsible. The company may pay a small affordable fine and be told to clean up their act, but no one person feels the pinch. There is no personal pain or responsibility. I'm a mechanical engineer who has worked in energy efficiency and have seen first hand the greenwashing by companies big and small. This amounts to nothing less than socially accepted fraud. You need to do everything within your power to strengthen commitment and create transparency. Responsibility is often shirked by taking suppliers at their flimsy word of sustainability with no proof whatsoever, and looking the other way even when the claims are clearly unbelievable. This is especially all too easy for suppliers used abroad who aren't subject to our environmental laws and regulations. Just take a look at the organic cotton industry for example. This sort of thing is happening pervasively throughout our supply chains. I wonder if false advertising laws would be a way to help combat these issues to some degree, but whatever the means you have at the SEC, I ask you to use with full force.

It' not fair nor American for corporations to evade their responsibilities re climate impacts and it's definitely not OK to keep that information from the public and potential investors. Corporations are getting a "free lunch" when the foist cleanup costs from not keeping climate commitments onto the public - someone has to pay because in the total scheme of thins there truly is NO FREE LUNCH.

It seems like if a company produces Scope 3 emissions, it should be required to disclose them. If it doesn't, it's easy enough to say, "Not applicable."

As an American retiree with significant savings, it's very important to me that those savings be protected by clear rules about company accountability and transparency.

It seems whenever another issue monopolizes the headlines (inflation, guns, etc.) our climate crisis gets pushed too far down the To-Do List. Please understand, these issues are important but moot if we continue to kill our ecosystems and ourselves by extension. It is vital that corporations ACTUALLY go green, instead of just "greenwashing" toxic practices. The only people who benefit from fossil fuels are the oil companies. They don't even care about their children, grandchildren, and so on. All they care about is profits. We NEED to make a change.

It should be a no brainer to hold corporations who are big polluters like oil and gas to a strong final rule on the climate risks they are exposing Americans to. For heavens sake, make it mandatory and make it stick. Another example of profit over people.

Misinformation - i.e. lying about actions while taking credit for false promises - is one of the most destructive forces in the US today. It is used to bypass, policies, procedures, laws, and ethical expectations throughout business and the government.

The SEC is one of the last places to rein in such wholesale corruption and abuse in business and government.

Please hold the line - ethical norms matter. People will have lives destroyed and even die as the climate changes. This is not a public relations game - we have islands already being inundated, extreme hurricanes, tornados and wild fired destroy almost every area of the country. The SEC can make a difference by holding business to reasonable standards of behavior and reporting.

My husband and I are both civil service retirees. On a personal financial level, we rely on prudent investment of our pensions to provide adequate income to live. We deserve to know if our pension systems are investing in high risk assets that may earn below-market returns due to climate risk. On a personal survival level, we also deserve to know if corporations are contributing to climate change through high GHG emissions, thus violating the Paris climate accord. We have a daughter who may not survive 3 degrees of warming predicted for her lifetime. Antonio Guterres recently remarked that empty pledges from businesses have put us on track for an unlivable world. Corporate accountability is essential to stop the bad actions of polluting corporations who greenwash their climate destroying practices and put profits over community and planetary health. Other business need to be part of the solution too - the Securities and Exchange Commission can help make that happen with the climate risk disclosure rule. No one keeps a secret for your benefit. They keep it for their benefit. When it comes to matters that affect the health, welfare and existence of all life on earth; there can be no secrets. The idea that proprietary matter is more important than what is necessary to life is ludicrous. When money comes before life; society is doomed, at the very least. At the worst, life is doomed.

Think of someone objecting to disclosure as someone having something to hide. That should make it very easy to make a law that prohibits that action. "I plead the fifth," has never meant that someone was innocent.

Now, more than ever, is the time to demand that the SEC hold corporations accountable to disclose their climate risks. We are all in this together, and investors have a right to have information on which to make informed investment decisions. Please strengthen the final rule as a step to shift to a clean energy economy.

On to the ability of a related issue, the SEC should not have made it more difficult for small investors to put forward for stockholders to vote on at annual meetings. These proxy votes are key to the ability of ordinary investors to express displeasure (other than voting "no" on nominees for director) and to demand that corporations behave in a socially responsible manner. Proxy materials should be required to include statements on both sides of these resolutions, rather than just the directors recommendation to reject all such proposals.

Our country has had too much misinformation. I support this essential tool--the Securities and Exchange Commission's new draft rule for climate risk disclosure--for increasing investors' and the public's awareness of and the costs of climate-related risks. Stop allowing corporations to put their thumbs on the scales and misrepresent how well they are living up to their alleged commitments to fighting climate change. We need the data that will make it possible to shift our economy to one that stops pouring money into the pockets of corporations that say one thing and do another.

Please hold corporations accountable and make them transparent regarding what they are doing - to make a profit - impacts climate change. We all live with the effects of climate change, so doesn't it follow we as citizens in a democracy should have access what companies are actually doing - or not doing- to combat climate change

1734. Gladys Lewandowski
[REDACTED]
Manorville, NY 11949
Please hold corporations accountable by having a strong rule to require companies to be transparent in disclosing climate risks

1735. Mary Nell Thompson
[REDACTED]

Please hold corporations accountable to their climate commitments! The future of our economy depends on it.

1752. Frances Lee
[REDACTED]
Moorpark, CA 93021
Please hold corporations accountable, especially oil and gas companies. They have been known to say they are investing in clean energy, but it represents a tiny fraction of their revenues. The risk should be transparent as the Scope 3 disclosure requires.

1753. Lucy Brinkman
[REDACTED]
Alexandria, VA 22305
Please hold corporations more accountable!

1754. Susan Crawford
[REDACTED]
Chicago, IL 60657

Please keep people honest and hold corporations accountable.

1763. Zaine Baird

[REDACTED]
Boise, ID 83706
Please keep the rules strong regarding disclosure of corporations climate risks. It is past time to hold corporations accountable. How can the U.S. lead as it pertains to climate resilience when we do not hold corporations accountable Too much of the worlds population is suffering already due to climate change and it will happen here if we dont take strong action. Thank you for proposing the rule and ensuring there will be oversight and penalties for noncompliance.

Please make sensible and responsible decisions for this planet, this is our home base that we need to protect for our children. Only old people who have no true love for their children can make decisions that harm planet and people. Are you that person Or are you one who understands that all living beings, humans, animals, and plants are intimately connected and interdependent whether you want to acknowledge it or not. Prioritizing profits over people and another Nature has been the epitome of human ignorance and is utterly self destructive (as we are witnessing).
Once again I appeal to you to act responsibly for the health and well-

Please make sure they are completely transparent so that we aren't blurred into investing in a company that is lying to us

1778. Nancy Johnson

[REDACTED]
Edmonds, WA 98020
Please make the rule as strong as possible. Corporate greed and misrepresentation are wrong and, unfortunately, successful! We need a level playing field to find the truth!

1779. Karen Roth

[REDACTED]
Northville, MI 48167
Please make the rules fully effective! Americans who want to invest in American companies, protect their own financial health, and support companies who are working to protect our world, need full disclosure. You can create that!

1780. Chantal Andersen

[REDACTED]
Atlanta, GA 30345
Please make the world safe for generations to come!

1781. Deanna Johnson

[REDACTED]
Davis, CA 95618
Please make this rule as strong as possible and make sure that corporations disclose their impacts correctly and completely.

1782. Joy Reich

[REDACTED]
Boulder, CO 80304
Please make your regulation strong enough that companies are not able to avoid disclosures of their climate risks and impacts. Also, please require independent verification of their disclosures. We need to be able to trust disclosures to help inform our investment decisions.

1783. Elizabeth Salerno

[REDACTED]
La Mesa, CA 91941
Please move to protect our resources.

1784. Kimberly Mchugh

[REDACTED]

Please pass SEC requirements to demand disclosure from all companies whose emissions pose any risk to climate.

1785. Peter Switalski

[REDACTED]
Richmond, KY 40475
Please pass new strong rules for climate risk disclosures from corporations. People need to know the "truth" about what corporations are really doing to our environment. This is important for our world.

1786. Kevin Brown-Goebeler

[REDACTED]
Bridgewater, NJ 8807
Please pass rules to force businesses to be honest, transparent, and accurate on their environmental efforts! Our future generations demand this.

1787. Martha Dahlgren

Please require clear Scope 3 disclosure requirements with independent verification for large public companies. Investors like me and my family need transparency from these companies to see past the green washing many of them engage in. The Stock market relies on confidence to be a positive force in our economy, please strengthen our confidence by requiring transparent climate related disclosures for investors. Thank you for you good work, Rachelle Mazar

1803. Tracy Pedersen

Please require companies to disclose their climate risks. Otherwise our air pollution problem will never be under control. Thank you!

1807. Scott Norland
[REDACTED]
San Diego, CA 92123
Please require companies to disclose their full environmental impact so their true cost of doing business is clear.

1808. Linda Faucheux
[REDACTED]
New Orleans, LA 70130
Please require full and truthful reporting from all actors whose operations potentially affect the environment that sustains us all and which is now under dire threat. Not all of us can hop on a self-sustaining satellite to orbit Mother Earth or colonize another planet. In reportage on the effects of human activity on the environment, we need no spin, no obfuscation, no aspirational statements, no marketing modelling-- we need the conclusions of objective analysts and investigators who have the knowledge, expertise, and character to render honest assessments. Again, for most of us there is and will be no Planet B. For the sake of us all, please require accurate and forthcoming statements on the possible effect of any major proposed human activity on the environment.

1809. Pamela Hastings

[REDACTED]
Port Angeles, WA 98362
PLEASE require large companies to Clearly and Honestly disclose climate risks in new and old investments...I am a good capitalist, but am not willing to risk my own and my grandchildrens' future lives for larger profits for a few. It is not honest not to allow investors to decide for ourselves. Thank you.

1810. Jean Avery

Please state honestly what possible climatic hazards are created with the manufacturing of your products.

1816. Christine Munsterman

[REDACTED]
Rancho Cucamonga, CA 91730
Please STOP allowing Corporations to make false claims about their products being green. It demeans our American values and our efforts to SAVE the planet from achieving real climate change and green goals.
Thank you!! Christine Munsterman

1817. Anne Siciliano

[REDACTED]
Santa Barbara, CA 93109
Please stop allowing corporations to manufacture and use products that pollute earth. Make them release results of use of the products to remain in business. Our climate needs rescuing from the pollution for Earths survival.

1818. Linda Cox

PLEASE STRENGTHEN the draft rule requiring companies to disclose their climate risks!!!

1833. Rachel Grover

[REDACTED]
Independence, MO 64052
Please strengthen not weaken EPA guidelines and hold corporations accountable to their (so far, empty) promises and commitments re: the Climate Crisis!

1834. Emma Shook

[REDACTED]
University Hts, OH 44118
Please strengthen the draft rule and require full disclosure of all emissions. As an investor, I want to know that my investments are not supporting climate change and ecological devastation.

1835. Buff Grace

[REDACTED]
, - 55082
Please strengthen the new draft rule on climate risk disclosure to ensure a level field across all companies. A weak or imbalanced application will not provide the transparency needed and could actually give some companies more cover to their greenwashing if they can claim they are abiding by a climate rule which still allows them to mislead about their carbon emissions.

1836. Julie Cutter

[REDACTED]
Saint Louis, MO 63108
Please strengthen the rule so that investors will receive accurate information about companies and the climate risks for which they are responsible.

1837. Donald Gladfelter

[REDACTED]
Milan, IL 61264
Please strengthen the rules for climate risk disclosure. We need to move much more quickly to ID climate risk so they can be corrected. 2050 is not that far away.

1838. Diane Lubarski

[REDACTED]
Arlington Heights, IL 60004
Please strengthen, not weaken this draft rule! Corporations need to be held accountable to their climate commitments.

1839. Steve Perakis

[REDACTED]
Columbus, OH 43229
Please strengthen, not weaken, this draft rule. Although the proposal is generally strong, it, unfortunately, allows many companies to decide whether to disclose the emissions emitted by their clients, customers and suppliers. For banks and other key industry sectors, these so-called value chain emissions represent the majority of their emissions. Investors have been asking for this information for far too long and have every right to know about these major sources of climate risk.

1840. Brenda Mercier

[REDACTED]
Ashland Coty, TN 37015
Please support a cleaner environment for the sake of my grandchildren and the rest of our world. We have to stand up for what is right so we can not just move into the future but actually have a future. This disclosure is so very important. Please do the right thing!!!

1841. Betty Hanacek

[REDACTED]
Atlanta, GA 30305
Please support a strong final rule. The public deserves to know whether companies will remain profitable and resilient in an economy that is transitioning to clean energy. Please follow through with this disclosure rule. Thank you

1842. Wendi Wissick

[REDACTED]

The banking industry bothers me on the political side. I never thought of it until I started reading more about banks and their political politics....ie as to whom banks donate money to when it is election time critical. Many, many banks donat big money to candidates that are climate deniers. I personally would rather do my banking with a banking institution that prefers to donate to candidates that understand the total scoped of clients control. Being in Florida, most banks are with the Republican candidates. This makes me uneasy in that they are using my money for those that I wouldn't vote for.

This is where life energy and information exists in mutual interdependence. Everything in nature, including you and me, is dependent on everything else. You extirpate the wolves and the forest goes fallow. You kill the bees and the flowers dont bloom. You kill the plants and you kill yourself. The principles of free market capitalism presuppose market buyers (and investors) have accurate information about relevant factors to their buying decisions. Otherwise, predatory markets reign with commerce and capital as prey or perpetrators of fraud and the dominant logic being the maximization of deception, not the maximization of value. Especially for buyers but also capital investors, determining the climate impacts of investing in the operations of one company vs. its competitors is currently onerously difficult to reach an apples-to-apples comparison vital to effective market competition serving the public & national interest. That the Pentagon regards climate change as a primary national security threat shows that climate impacts present violent and lethal consequences which, for any non-psychopath, demand greater assurance of transparency and reliability in corporate disclosures. Removing room for spin and misinformation is therefore vital to uphold the SEC's purpose.

The world is rapidly getting worse. Many people will die as a result of our inaction. We need to do whatever we can and do it now. There has been a deluge of clean or green products made with unsustainable practices in plastic packaging in the last few years. I deserve as a consumer looking to reduce my personal impact on climate change to not be lied to about what I'm purchasing. We are all in this together. As a climate conscious citizen, I want to know what your impact is and you should too! Corporations must be held accountable as we all - all citizens must be! There is no way to get climate risks under control if we still allow polluters to sneak through without tallying their impacts on the environment. We need to keep all industries compliant by knowing their impact. This includes secondary impacts like the wireless telecommunications and and bitcoin who use an incredible amount of energy for their processing. There is too much a tendency for corporations to ignore the climate risks we face and stick their head in the sand to focus on the next quarter or annual report metrics. The attitude is, "we'll address it next year", "let the other guy do it, it will hurt our bottom line and our competitive position" or even "it's not us". We are headed for a big crash in so many areas [water for people and crops, crop failures, storms, flooding, fires, etc.] that it's frightening. While all these impacts are building to the point they will be truly catastrophic -- corporate America and the Government are re-arranging the deck chairs on our own Titanic. This is a baby step that desperately needs doing, if we ever want to walk back from the ledge we're on from Climate Change (what a metaphor!). I'm still horrified at how much we will likely lose in the next 20 -30 years due to ocean acidification, melting ice caps, changing wind patterns, and incredible spontaneous wildfires. But! Let's start somewhere. Please. Unrelated to this, but still direly important- can it be noted that I have a very favorable view of Nuclear fission as the best, stable, flexible, green energy we (presently) have. Arguably, hydro could be better if done understanding ecological impacts, but there are obvious limitations in use cases. The more money we can put into nuclear, the better the hope for the future.

This is a tough BUT ESSENTIAL reality to face for corporations AND investors. The risks are great- especially for those of us who have invested a large chunk of our life savings who also have limited income. We must be protected- and corporations have to evolve- the only way to evolve is to be honest and transparent about climate risk- which must include emissions from suppliers, customers and clients. No corporation, large or small- but especially large scale operations, should be able to slip through the cracks. If there is a loophole, they will use it.

This issue matters greatly to me, because I want to require the companies I am considering investing in to publicly disclose critical information to make it easier for everyone to choose where to invest their money. I want companies to be transparent about things like their carbon emissions, their climate goals, and how they plan to respond to climate change to help me and millions of other Americans be able to invest IRA funds with sustainable companies.

This issue matters to me because I would like to know how the companies that I and others invest in are reliable and care about all aspects regarding emissions and how they are being disclosed to the SEC. The public deserves to know which companies are transitioning to clean energy without being lied to by polluting companies and lobbyists who are distorting or covering up the truth to the SEC about emissions disclosures. Companies and lobbyists must disclose their climate risks.

Second, Im a person with investments in the financial markets and I need to have confidence in what these corporations tell us.

In our state, we have twin enemies to the environment and human wellbeing - New Mexico is in a megadrought unlike any in the past 1,200 years - please read that again so you see the magnitude of loss to our water supply, our vegetation and our livelihoods. Also, we are experiencing the largest and most destructive wildfires in the state's history. AT THE HEART OF OUR PROBLEM is the fossil fuel industry - pumping methane into our atmosphere and draining our scarce water by the millions of gallons for every frack. So, we have to get off fossil fuels - transition fast or cold turkey. Time to pull the plug on financing and subsidizing and kowtowing to big oil.

It take individuals, advocacy groups, scientists, and corporations, both big and small, working together to make a difference. This issue matters to me, because I intend on majoring in environmental science or environmental law after completing this current degree in biology. I want a better, safer, and cleaner world for the future generations. We only have one planet, which God has so graciously given us, along with His

Transparency builds trust. Conversely, secrecy breeds distrust, and we the public have had so many great reasons to distrust corporations for externalizing suffering and privatizing all gains, which is especially egregious when our corrupt elected officials subsidize already profitable corporations with our taxpayer dollars. Transparency is the bare minimum expectation that we should have. Corporations business model, in many cases, is rooted in deception and fraud. We need someone who looks out for the interests of the largely uninformed public, as they own all the major media who disseminate THEIR perspective without holding them accountable.

Transparency is the cornerstone of full disclosure of risk. Climate change is perhaps the greatest risk of this time in human history. We are witnessing how human actions are changing the environment in powerful, perhaps irreparable ways. Some entities are even capitalizing on this while others are taking responsible efforts to both reduce impact and retain revenue. With impending legislation to create a carbon market, investors deserve a clear picture of the true environmental impact their investments are generating so we can modify our positions accordingly.

We have seen repeatedly that corporations will not protect the communities in which they operate unless they are forced to. It is essential that they be held accountable. As we all watch our investments decline in value, it would be reassuring to know that we, as investors, would have the ability to evaluate these companies in terms of their impact on the environment, helping us to make wise investment decisions. Please strengthen your rules requiring companies to disclose their climate risks. Thank you.

We need this new rule to protect those companies that are truly taking action against climate change. Their competitors should not be able to stand by and do nothing, yet dishonestly claim otherwise and get away without consequences. That is an inappropriate competitive advantage to which they have no right.
The consumer must be protected to know that their values are not being dishonestly appropriated by greenwashing corporations.

We should be make an all-out effort to decrease our CO2 emissions to reduce climate change. A major part of that should be switching as fast as possible to renewable energy sources and away from fossil fuels. Our country should become a leader in renewable energy technology that is creating many more jobs than there are in the fossil fuel industry. Our country should invest in this and become a leader in renewable energy technology that is creating many more jobs than there are in the fossil fuel industry. Renewable energy sources instead of the fossil fuel industry are the ones we should be supporting.

Wealth and power are addictive, acting on the brain in ways identical to that of cocaine (please see Nova: Mind Over Money for an introduction to the science behind this statement). This little-recognized truth lies behind the drive for financial deregulation that has dominated policy in the US for 40 years, and led to increasing economic irresponsibility, recessions and crashes. It has also created the greatest wealth gap in the history of the developed world. What most people do not realize is that widening wealth gaps often lead to civil wars. (Please read How Civil Wars Start and How to Stop Them by Barbara F. Walter, one of the world's leading experts on contemporary civil war). In a country that has more guns than people (a standing the USA shares with no other country, ever) civil war becomes even more likely, longer and more deadly.

Rapid re-regulation may avert this disaster. Please do it!

When a company makes money in the United States, I would think it would be reasonable for that company to want the United States to continue as a successful and healthy nation so that the company could be the same and grow. Every business should do all that is needed to improve and keep the environment in peak condition. Transparency is, simply put, honesty. I would hope that in the scheme of things, honesty ranks at the top. Be truthful and accountable with your actions concerning this most important climate as you realize that you and your family breathe the air and drink the water.

When making investments in our future we need information that will affect more than our financial goals. We are investing in our families, our children and Grandchildren. When we are not given information which might indicate profits are being gained at the expense of our families well being this is an unforgivable betrayal and is unfair to countless individuals like me who need to protect our families and our savings for the long term. WHEN, WHEN, WHEN is this country ever going to put the needs of its people and planet over the need of corporations for profit. Said corporations bellyache about the importance of capitalism, so they should welcome the weeding out of bad investments that strong regulations may accomplish when investors, consumers, etc, decide that some corporations are not worth the investing due to their environmental destruction.
